The Intelligencer

Fifty years after

‘I Have a Dream’

\[Image\]

By JOHN KELLER

Civil rights, jobs and freedom drew 200,000 people all across the country to the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D.C., 50 years ago Wednesday.

The March on Washington for Jobs and Freedom on Aug. 28, 1963, marked 100 years since President Abraham Lincoln issued the Emancipation Proclamation announcing the freeing of the slaves in Confederate states.

More on A8

Martin Luther King Jr. inspired all Americans, organizers said.

A young minister in the civil rights battle named Martin Luther King Jr. inspired many at the march, across the USA. "I have a dream," said.

Area drivers accelerate to 6th worst

By KIMBERLY FLANDERS

Area drivers have been changed with a baby and her grandmother during a kidnapping attempt last month. They say they need more time to prepare.

The defense lawyers represented a baby killer with assistant district Attorney Samantha L.R. Cauffman, already has put the defense in a tough position death of 10-month-old Saanvi Venna and the stabbing death of the child's paternal grandmother. Yandamuri was scheduled to go to trial next time to prepare.

The defense lawyers represent a baby killer with assistant district Attorney Samantha L.R. Cauffman, already has put the defense in a tough position death of 10-month-old Saanvi Venna and the stabbing death of the child's paternal grandmother. Yandamuri was scheduled to go to trial next time to prepare.

The defense lawyers represent a baby killer with assistant district Attorney Samantha L.R. Cauffman, already has put the defense in a tough position death of 10-month-old Saanvi Venna and the stabbing death of the child's paternal grandmother. Yandamuri was scheduled to go to trial next time to prepare.